INTRODUCTION :

India is one of the most disaster prone countries in the world. Around 65% of the land area is vulnerable to earthquakes, 70 % of the land is prone to drought, 12 % to floods and 8 % to cyclones. The lack of skills in facing the effects of disasters affects the ability of the people to recover from periodic intense disasters.

Prevention is better than cure is very apt in the context of disaster management. Awareness and training is an important tool in creating this culture of prevention and preparedness. To design Disaster Management Action Plan is one of the preventive measures and it is also a statutory provision under Environmental Protection Act, 1986. It is the responsibility of management of industrial units to prepare the action plan well in advance to save precious human lives and property in the interest of the society and the people who stay nearby.

With the objective of increasing skills through training to mitigate effects of natural disasters or man-made disasters like fires, poisonous gas leakage etc., MCCIA has organized this full day workshop on the above subject, the details of which are given below.
