

US set out on banking reform plans

The US economy has set out plans for big banks to put more money aside against future losses and restrain unwarranted risk taking. The Federal Reserve would be monitoring major financial institutions. Since 1930's this would be the biggest leap of the US system of financial regulation.